

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Acknowledgments

1. Introduction: Placing Biak	1
Approaching the Problem	2
Southeast Asia and the Search for "Something Else"	14
Melanesia and "the West"
Beyond Ethnology
Colonialism, Modernity, and Anthropology: An Internal Exit?	56
The Settings
2. Frontier Families: A Domestic Economy of Shock
The Return of Petrus Kafiar
Front Doors, Back Doors
Food, Memory, and Mothers
Brothers and Sisters
Interlude on Love and the Gift
Brothers and Brothers
Conclusion
3. Violence, Magic, Music and Dance: The Poetics of Shock
The Unpredictable Potency of Biak Warriors
Violence, Intoxication, and the Discourse of the Frontier
Inanai Magic: Feasts for Fish
The Vocal Poetics of Wor : Feasts for Families
Yospan 's Visual Poetics: Feasts for Foreigners
Conclusion
4. Writing and the Authority of Absence: The Translation of Shock
Frontiers and Fetishisms
The Possession: the Entry of the Book
The Model: the Copying of the Book
Interlude on Syncretism, Translation and Incorporation:
How to Eat the Bible
The Fragment: The Destruction of the Book

Conclusion

5. Messianic Modernities

Modernity's Monsters

A Myth of Modernity and the Myth of Manarmakeri

Conclusion

6. The Subjection of the Papuan

Colonial Contexts

Pacifying New Guinea

The Revival of Wor I

Conclusion

7. The Subject of Biak?

A Poster, a List of Porcelain, and a Catalogue

The Revival of Wor II

Maps and Odysseys

The Trip to Jakarta

Conclusion: Watching Television with Sister Sally

Appendix 1 Life Cycle Events

Appendix 2: Bridewealth Case Study

Appendix 3: Origin Stories

References